

Public transport passengers say they could make fewer trips after pandemic predict making fewer trips by public transport after travel restrictions are lifted rail commuters say they will make fewer public transport trips

Of those expecting to reduce their use of public transport

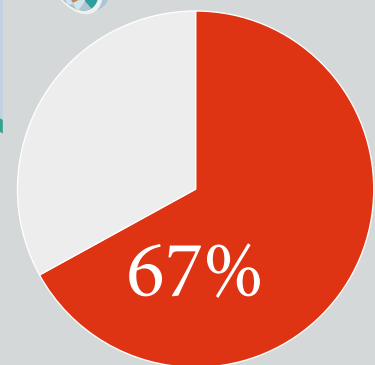

49% will do so because of concerns over getting ill

24% said they will work from home more

14% found another way of making their journey of full and part time workers believe they will work from home more once travel restrictions are lifted believe virtual meetings will replace some or all business trips or meetings